Elena Anghel*

Abstract

High emotional intelligence enables children to obtain success in any field of activity. This developmental process must be in the attention of parents and educational psychologists even in early childhood. The experiential learning and experiential counseling techniques offer for children, in an easy and pleasant manner, access to their own inner life experience. Gaining access to their own resources, becoming aware of them, as well as unlocking them and exercising good practices of interpersonal relationship lead to an advantageous social integration of children. Drawing, painting, molding, collage, game, guided fantasy, metaphor, drama, dance, motion, music turn the group sessions into real laboratories of personal discovery, transformation and growth, joy, well-being and enthusiasm.

Keywords: emotional intelligence, interpersonal relationship, social integration of children
